PROJECT UPDATE

OLD SALISBURY MALL REDEVELOPMENT - APPROVED

With Salisbury's Preliminary Comprehensive Development Plan approval, the 80-acre site of what once was "the old mall" is moving closer to development. The Developer and Fisher Architecture have continued working closely to find a program that fits best with the surrounding neighbors and meets the current market's needs. A community input meeting was held, and positive feedback was given by the public considering the current plan is a much less dense plan than what was originally approved. The future development plans include commercial, retail and multi-family components. The developer has engaged a national home builder as well as a national convenient store. More updates will be given as the development process continues.

NEW PROJECT

CUSTOM WATERFRONT RESIDENCE

Fisher Architecture has provided architectural design services for this custom 4,000 square foot waterfront home to be built in Salisbury, Maryland. The Fisher team designed the spacious open floor plan of the residence recognizing the expansive views of the river that could be caught from all rooms. Some exciting features include a walk out balcony, two story stone fireplace, coffered ceilings and so much more.

STAFF SPOTLIGHT

Heather Morrison

Fisher Architecture congratulates Heather A. Morrison, AIA on passing her final professional exam and becoming a newly licensed Architect in the state of Maryland.

Heather, who through extensive education, experience and a series of rigorous exams, earned her architecture license from the National Council of Architectural Registration Boards. As many can attest, it is no small achievement.

Heather graduated from Temple University in 2009 and has over ten years of professional experience. She began her career at Fisher Architecture as an Architectural Intern and was promoted to Chief Operations Director in 2018. Heather has experience in all market sectors and has been an asset to the Fisher team since 2012.
